
Team Bingo – What Is It?

Written by Matt Kennedy | Last updated: 1 April 2015

Traditional bingo is all about you trying to score numbers to win prizes for yourself. People who play bingo usually do it individually. However with team bingo, you're part of a group. Team bingo is all about having fun and taking the love of bingo to the next level; winning is just as important as having a good time in a group and making new friends. Team bingo transforms what can be quite a lonely game into a sociable and friendly game. Not all sites offer team bingo, so you'll have to look round to see what sites offer it. If you like socialising and playing bingo, team bingo is definitely for you. It's a great way of bringing players together and can liven up a site's bingo community. Even if you enjoy playing by yourself, it's still worth a go so you can experience what it's like to play bingo as part of a team.

How do you play team bingo?

Teams are usually made up of four players. There are two ways teams are made up: sometimes you'll be able to make your own team up with other players, while sometimes the site will randomly generate teams, with time line-ups changing every month. If you've got a set of people you want to play with, try to find a site that lets you make your own teams; if you're happy to be put into a team and make new friends, find a site that decides its teams randomly. A lot of fun can be had deciding on a team name, whether you're with people you already know or you're with a group of new people. Once your name has been decided, you then register your team, which is really easy to do and is done by completing an email form. With team bingo, you usually score points each time you get a full house and it can be really exciting watching your team climb up the leader board. In a way team bingo is more fun because you can share the excitement of doing well with your teammates. Team bingo is all about joining together and revelling in the team spirit. It can get really tense when there's a tie and two teams are fighting it out to win. Even though team bingo is very similar to standard bingo in how it works, it can get a lot more competitive than standard bingo because there's that added team spirit thrown into the mix.

What are the prizes like?

The prizes you get for winning at team bingo are usually loyalty points, which can be converted into tickets. These points can't be withdrawn as cash – you're encouraged to convert them so you can spend more time playing the site's games. Team bingo isn't really about winning a cash prize – it's more about a group of players having fun together and winning prizes they can each benefit from. If you're used to playing bingo by yourself, why not give team bingo a go? It can make bingo a whole lot more exciting and it can make visiting bingo sites more sociable and enjoyable as well.
